Italian-Hungarian based in Ireland, sales and BD leader with enterprise-grade commercial experience and deep crypto-native execution. Held senior commercial and customer-facing roles, with the ability to translate field insights and customer feedback directly into actionable product intelligence.

At Sophos, a Thoma Bravo portfolio cybersecurity company, managing major enterprise accounts, including sensitive public-sector, government-contractor, and high-value commercial customers. Earlier in his career, worked in mining operations and procurement at a company involved in early privacy-coin mining, including XMR and other CryptoNight-based coins, with responsibility for hardware sourcing, project coordination, and end-to-end operational delivery.

Co-founded an ERC-20 token project, leading exchange integrations, supporting the trading side, and implementing the distribution strategy, resulting in the world's largest active Telegram community in its segment at the time. Bitcoiner since 2015, actively engaged with the global community, and frequently attends international conferences.

Contributing now to Kaleidoswap since its inception, leading Sales and BD, while also supporting operational and commercial execution as the company scales. Brings a combination of enterprise sales experience, operating discipline, technical acumen, and long-standing familiarity with the Bitcoin space.
